about us

Azurlis founder Dr Fernanda da Silva Tatley is a Dunedin based molecular medical microbiologist. Raised in Portugal she studied at the University of Cape Town completing a PhD in molecular medical microbiology. She then moved to New Zealand in 1999 as a scientist for the University of Otago. At the same time Fernanda began developing her own holistic skin care range. She has a Masters of Entrepreneurship. She is also a Reiki Master as well as a Reconnective Healing Practitioner. Fernanda's approach to skincare reflects a balance between science and soul. Her holistic approach to skin, body and soul care is an extension of how she sees the world around her.

Azurlis encourages environmentally friendly awareness and practices that contribute to the sustainability of our unique planet and our own wellbeing. We believe that this is best achieved through adherence to organic certification of food, farming and personal care products. This approach is our motivation to obtain full organic certification for all of our products though many of our ingredients are already aligned with the organic certification standards for personal care products. For more information about the Azurlis product ranges and ingredient properties please visit our website www.azurlis.co.nz.
